

States usually have a rich history - Bardakas has a mess. A group of insatiable souls, regardless of age and social status, united for one philosophy of life. Signing a divorce paper with a bore and drawing a clear boundary - they separated from everyday life and founded the independent state - Bardakas. Their nation's borders are fortified by insane traditions, and its citizens are rewarded for daring to pursue their dreams, which in Bardakas is a must. Their national uniform is dictated by the current mood, their tables are not only for food but also for dancing, their work is a holiday, their daily stories change history, their laws tell about their absence, their constitution explains about the mess that makes order. The state is in the state. Created by abnormal - for abnormal.
